QUARTERLY COMMENT

In Q1 2025, local markets performed relatively well compared to global counterparts, with the local equity market rising by 5.8% (JSE Capped SWIX Index), driven by a strong 27.9% rally in the resources sector, particularly gold and platinum. However, political uncertainty and rising bond yields weighed on RSA's financial and property sectors, which declined by 2.0% and 4.25%, respectively. On the global stage, markets faced challenges, with the S&P 500 falling 4.4%, while European markets showed stronger performance. Emerging markets, particularly China's tech sector, saw gains, although tariff concerns dampened sentiment. The rand appreciated by 2.5%, further impacting global asset returns for local investors.

Portfolio returns were positive, but generally muted, as both local and global equity exposures in the fund underperformed their respective benchmarks. The Managed Risk Fund delivered a return of 0.39%, with its local smart beta equity blend underperforming due to an underweight in gold and resources. Similarly, global equity performance lagged, tracking closely to the MSCI World index. Direct Property, with a return of 4.1%, was the largest positive contributor to returns.

Our fund positioning remains cautious and valuation-driven, with a preference for RSA assets due to attractive valuations and risk premiums. We favor cash, government bonds, and ILB's locally, while maintaining caution on global equities, particularly US stocks, due to high valuations and recession risks. While the strengthening rand may impact short-term returns from offshore assets, we continue to have a positive outlook on domestic assets.

PORTFOLIO MANDATE

To achieve the desired investment outcome, all combinations of asset classes are considered and an optimum allocation is selected to achieve this objective with a high degree of certainty. The expected returns of the various asset classes are enhanced through the appropriate selection of factor-based investment strategies. The risk of exposure to losses in the short term is continually managed by maximising diversification to asset classes, strategies and investment managers.
